NEARING THE END.

THE PRESIDENT STEADILY GROWING WEAKER.

HE HAD ANOTHER CHILL LAST EVENING AND HIS CONDITION CAUSES GENERAL ALARM.

A Powerful Constitution Evidently Succumbing to the Terrible Strain upon it, Caused by Eighty Days of Suffering—The Physicians Hope for the Best, but Fear the Worst.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A Post dispatch says: About noon the president had a severe rigor which lasted half an hour. It was plainly a pyæmic chill and is believed to have originated in pus confined somewhere not known. Whether this pent up pus is in the lung or the wound, of course the new complication increases the gravity of the situation and shows that the president is worse.

The Situation Critical.

...P. M.—The situation is decidedly critical inasmuch as there is great fear that more chills will be... It now transpires that there were indications of a rigor yesterday. The president also suffered from ... during last night, being troubled with pains in ... stomach. Bliss, in answer to inquiries shortly after the rigor became known, said it was one of ... and unfavorable symptoms which must be looked for at this stage, at the same time repeating remarks made heretofore to the effect that everything terrible follows the existence of chronic pyæmia. Great ... solicitude prevails.

Delirious.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 17, 1:30 P. M.—After the rigor the president commenced perspiring freely. During the prevalence of the rigor the patient was delirious.

Another Chill not Improbable.

ELBERON, Sept. 17, 2:30 P. M.—The president has slept almost continuously since the rigor ... He awoke a few minutes ago and afterward expressed himself as feeling better than before the chill occurred. The pulse is ... Dr. Agnew just said the president was doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances, but there is no certainty that there will not be another chill.

An Uneasy Feeling.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Sun's Long Branch special says: Dr. Bliss, notwithstanding the extraordinary occurrences of to-day, was more cheerful at 10 o'clock last evening than he was the night before. Possibly, however, his true feeling was manifested in a remark to a friend who thanked him for his courtesy in explaining the case, and who stated that he felt encouraged. Dr. Bliss said: "So I should feel more encouraged too, if I knew there were to be no more chills." This statement is undoubtedly the key to the opinion of the doctors to-night ... greatly fear more chills, and it is evident from ... admission that the president's temperature is now at so low a point that he is kept warm by artificial means, and that he is closely watched ... for indications of another chill. The ... are making tremendous efforts to sustain the president's vitality in hope of giving him strength enough to pull through another crisis.

The Same Story.

...P. M.—Since the noon examination there has been a gradual fall of temperature with diminished frequency of pulse and respiration, so that at the evening examination the temperature was 98, pulse ..., and respiration 18. He has slept most of the ... during the afternoon, and has taken his nourishment at proper intervals. His cough has been ... frequent than usual. AGNEW AND BLISS.

The Evening Bulletin.

ELBERON, Sept. 17, 6 P. M.—There is a yielding of the unfavorable symptoms this evening. The president ... has slept naturally to-day. He had beef tea, ... beef, milk punch, porridge, a few Delaware grapes and two strawberries. He ate some ... just previous to the chill. An attempt was made to give him some brandy and water at the time, but the vomiting occurred. It is, at II ... that the ball is thoroughly encysted. The condition of the lung is somewhat better than yesterday. The president seems some stronger this evening, and is easier and more restful.

Saturday's Dispatch to Lowell.

ELBERON, Sept. 17.—The president had a severe chill this forenoon lasting half an hour, followed by considerable fever and perspiration. Since then there has been a gradual decrease in pulse, temperature and respiration. He has slept most of the time, but there has been no gain in strength nor any evidence of ... and the situation is now probably more ... and critical than at any time heretofore. McVEAGH.

Unchanged.

ELBERON, Sept. 18.—At the examination of the patient at 8:30 this A. M. his temperature was 98, pulse ..., and respiration 18. There was no perceptible rise during the night, his pulse ranging from 101 to 112. The cough was less troublesome than on the previous night. The expectoration was unchanged. He was able to take nourishment and stimulants required without gastric disturbance, nor has there been any evidence of mental ... during the night.

Slight Encouragement.

ELBERON, Sept. 18, 10:15 A. M.—Dr. Hamilton in conversation with an associated press reporter said, while the bulletin is not reassuring to a decided degree, there is reason to be slightly encouraged at the president's condition at the morning dressing. General Swaim says the discharge from the wound is more healthy in appearance and the wound ... The president passed a comfortable night and had no febrile rise. There is renewed ...

Sounds a Little Better.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 18.—12:45 P. M.—The president is ... comfortable day. Col. Swaim considers that ... Sunday, he has had for several ... Members of the cabinet have called at the Francklyn cottage this morning and expressed themselves as feeling that there is no reason to anticipate any immediate danger. Gen. Grant also called this morning. He says he was informed that the president was doing nicely.

Dr. Boynton Expects more Trouble.

...P. M.—The president's pulse at this hour is ... temperature 100. Dr. Boynton considers ... as a favorable indication, inasmuch as the temperature shows that the patient has ... vitality. Dr. Boynton feels better ... situation, but is still anxious and expects ... recurrence of unfavorable symptoms sooner...

The Benefit of Beef Blood.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 18.—The new treatment in the president's case, viz: the administration of defibrinated beef blood, became necessary because the ... ceased to assimilate food properly, or at least sufficiently to overcome the waste going on. ... is procured fresh from New York abattoirs ... It is entirely free from the fibrine of the blood, which prevents the danger of its ... This treatment, aside from the ... it affords, it is hoped will purify the ... to a certain extent.

The Evening Bulletin.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 18.—The president, though ... has passed a very quiet day. There has been no recurrence of chills nor mental disturbance. At 12 M. a slight febrile rise took place and ... reached its maximum at 1½ o'clock, at which time the temperature was ..., pulse 110, and respiration 20. ... slight increase of fever and no change in the character of the expectoration. At 5 P. M. ... temperature was 98.4, pulse 102, respiration 20. AGNEW. BLISS.

Another Chill Reported.

...P. M.—The colored waiter at the president's cottage reported that the president had another chill ... after the evening dressing. He says it ... chills, and lasted six or ten minutes. ... and Boynton are at the cottage. The ... cannot be verified at present.

The Report Confirmed.

...P. M.—Attorney General MacVeagh has just returned from the Francklyn cottage, and says while he ... that the attending surgeons, he understands that the president had had a slight chill which lasted about ten minutes.

Resting Quietly.

ELBERON, Sept. 18.—At this hour 10:45 P. M., the president is resting quietly and more comfortably. His pulse is 122, and temperature somewhat above normal. There is no improvement in his general condition, and the gravest apprehensions ...

Not a Reassuring Prospect.

The president has had a very comfortable day ... This is not construed by the attending surgeons as ground for reassurance, and those who ... constantly with the president, do not venture to predict that there will be no further complications. In fact they intimate that there is great probability of further unfavorable developments. At this hour the temperature is rising.

Evening Dispatch to Lowell.

ELBERON, Sept. 18.

Lowell, London.—The president passed a comparatively quiet and comfortable day, but this evening he had another chill, of less duration than that of yesterday, but sufficient to increase the very great anxiety already existing. He has also been slowly growing weaker, and his present condition excites the gravest apprehension. MacVEAGH.

Ireland Swells the Chorus.

DUBLIN, Sept. 18.—The National League convention cabled Mrs. Garfield a resolution expressive of the sympathy of the Irish nation.

... Forster, chief secretary for Ireland, has arrived. ... was not recognized by a few persons at the railway station, and no demonstration took place. ... and Thos. A. Dickson, members of parliament, had an interview with Forster at the castle for the purpose of urging the release of "suspects" ... Michael Davitt. Forster said he was unable at present to give an opinion on the matter, but that it ... would receive his careful attention and that the official answer will be given early in the week.

GENERAL EASTERN NEWS.

Train Robbers Exposed.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—A. S. Prude, who acted as ... special counsel for the Chicago & Alton R. R. ... in ferreting out the facts regarding the recent train robbery, states that his trip was brought about by ... visit to the headquarters of the Chicago & Alton ... in this city, of a middle-aged woman, who ... years gave the company some valuable ... leading to the apprehension of the outlaws. She revealed the fact that certain dark and mysterious conferences had been held at the house of S. ... near the scene of robbery, and gave the names of the participants. As a result of ... and subsequent investigations Prude believes the robbery was planned by a man named Clark, an expert professional train robber, formerly associated with the notorious "Hoosier Bill" and the Reno gang. Clark is ostensibly a cattle dealer in Missouri. Prude thinks his associates were hoodlums, green in the business, who believed their leader was Jesse James. The day following the robbery Clark lost a large sum of money in Kansas City in gambling dives, and raised more by pawning jewelry. The mysterious woman had been ruined and deserted by two of the outlaws and has been waiting for revenge. The gang were informed of her mission so early that some of them escaped, but more important arrests are expected in this connection. Officers of the Chicago & Alton recently stated that the road had served notice on the Missouri authorities that they will be held responsible for damages precisely as the authorities of Pittsburg were in 1877.

McSpadden, sheriff of Dent county, Missouri, accompanied by his deputy, arrived here to-day and identified the two prisoners, Mathew and Joseph Bowman, who were arrested at Kearney and brought to Omaha by Deputy U. S. Marshal Ball, for the murder of John Chandler in Dent county in August, 1880. After they killed Chandler, who was their brother-in-law, they fled to Texas, found employment as cow boys and came north to Nebraska this season, and when captured they had started on their return to Texas. The killing of Chandler occurred during a drunken fight, one of the brothers Bowman having a grudge against him. The prisoners were taken back to Dent county to-night.

ROCKLAND, Me., Sept. 17.—Chas. Smith, a laborer, last night shot and killed his wife, infant son and mother-in-law, and attempted to kill Mrs. Metcalf, an old lady living in the house, but she, with two children, escaped. The murderer surrendered. Jealousy was the cause of his horrid acts.

Fearful Crime and a worse Punishment.

DYKE'S MILL, La., Sept. 17.—A negro woman named Jane Campbell, who lived near here supporting herself and two children by washing and cotton picking, the other day became angry with her children because they disobeyed her in some trivial matter, and taking a pine knot beat out their brains. After the coroner's verdict a posse composed of blacks and whites gathered and seized Mrs. Campbell, tied her to a stake, and despite her screams and cries for mercy, literally roasted her alive. The crime and punishment is literally without a parallel in the criminal annals of this country.

Corkhill Criticised.

Pistols and Coffee for Two.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Christiancy having frequently openly denounced his wife's testimony in the divorce case as perjury, her brother, Dr. Lugenbeel, yesterday, after trying to insult Christiancy, sent him a formal challenge to meet him at any spot in Virginia, within twenty miles of Washington. Christiancy replied that he had no desire for notoriety as an assassin such as possessed Lugenbeel, and assuring him that he would allow him to carry out the implied threat of the letter at his own convenience, but that for himself he would depend upon the laws of his country for protection. This afternoon Christiancy applied for the arrest of Lugenbeel.

Sergeant Mason, who made the imperfect shot at Guiteau, publishes a rambling address to the American public confessing that the act was unsoldierly, but says Guiteau is a miserable wretch, deserving no consideration such as a man is entitled to, and it would not be murder to kill the cowardly assassin. THE RESERVE APACHES.

Gen. Willcox Surrounding them with Troops, and they will Soon be Compelled to Fight or Surrender.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—A dispatch from Fort Thomas, Arizona, says: The southern Apache chief ... came into the agency yesterday, and some of his ... has been, but do not seem to have any news of the hostiles. Sanchez is reported as being the leader of the hostiles. It is the opinion that some of the renegades have broken away from Cibicu and came over on Black river. Capt. McLellan, with company ..., crossed the Gila to-day, moving toward Fort Apache. Capt. Bailey and his company, who left here late yesterday afternoon in pursuit of the Indians reported by two Mexicans to have run off sheep belonging to them, returned and reported having found the sheep about 25 miles from here, and no signs of Indians. Supplies are being pushed forward for Fort Apache by the A. and P. road. Guards will be furnished for trains from New Mexico, the road to Fort Apache from this point via Rocky canyon being at present impassable for freight teams. Reports from Prescott about Indians attacking the stage near Antelope, after investigation, turns out to be false, as it appears to have been done either by whites or Mexicans. Companies C and E, 12th infantry left here to-day for Ash creek. Agent Tiffany arrived this evening from San Carlos. He brought Indians who were present at Carr's fight on Cibicu, and who afterwards came into the reservation and were ordered put in irons and sent to Thomas by Gen. Willcox. George's band are reported to have come into the reservation. A determined and combined movement commences to-morrow against the Apaches. Gen. Carr will advance with his command from Fort Apache towards Cibicu. Price is ordered to advance from the west through Tonto basin to the same objective point. Sanford with his command proceeds up the San Carlos river, opening communication with Price on the left and McLellan with two companies of cavalry on the right. This movement will result in the concentration of the different commands around the Cibicu lake and White river country where the hostiles are believed to be in force, and news may be expected from that part of the country soon. Mickey Free, a well-known Indian scout to all old residents in Arizona, came in this evening from the reservation.

An Honest Indian.

A dispatch from Tucson says the report that Eskiminzin, the Apache chief, took a large quantity of arms and ammunition from the place when he returned to San Pedro, is contradicted on the best authority. Deputy Sheriff Brokon followed the chief a mile from town and examined his wagon. He found but three guns and a small amount of ammunition.

Troops Still Coming.

Three companies of the 6th cavalry, with all their stock and accoutrements arrived at El Paso Friday morning. They leave immediately for Fort Wingate and from there will proceed to Fort Apache. Four more companies arrived at El Paso this morning, under Capt. ..., bound for the same place.

Gen. Carr will Scour the Country.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—A Times Fort Apache special says Gen. Carr will leave that post Sunday morning to scout in the region of Cibicu valley. He takes 10 officers, 185 men, 50 Indian scouts and 40 packers. Each man carries 150 rounds of ammunition and rations for 15 days. Lt. Col. Price's column is believed in the neighborhood of Cibicu valley, and Col. Bradley cannot be many days march from his post.

Military Operations.

FORT THOMAS, Sept. 18.—Lieut. Kerr, of the 6th cavalry, arrived to-day from Fort Grant with thirty men en route to Fort Apache. He will cross the Gila to-night. Lieut. Mills left here this morning to join Major Sanford, commanding a battalion of the 1st cavalry. He will command a company of scouts in Sanford's command. Agent Tiffany, accompanied by quite a number of Indians belonging to the agency, came in here last evening for the purpose of consulting Gen. Willcox regarding the Chiricahuas. Gen. Carr left Fort Apache to-day for Cibicu with 12 officers and 182 mounted men and a company of scouts under the command of Lieut. Gatewood of the 6th cavalry. Citizens are reported as forming companies in the vicinity of Saint Johns for mutual protection. General Willcox and his ... G., Major Arnold, and Aid-de-camp Capt. ... kelf, have been working night and day, assisted by the commanders of the district, and supplying departments, organizing, planning and directing the movement. It has been one of great labor, as the hostiles are entrenched in one of the most inaccessible portions of Arizona, surrounded by deep ravines, high mountains and box canyons, which make the fortifications for the savages very secure.

The Cow Boys becoming Troublesome.

TUCSON, Sept. 18.—The cow boy nuisance seems to be gaining ground in Cochise county. A few days ago they forced some lumber teamsters to go to camp at Soldiers' water hole and at night stole their stock. Reliable parties in from near the Mexican line report them gathering in force near San Bernardino ranch, and that they openly declare their intention of raiding the frontier of Mexico. The Mexican consul at this place considers the information so reliable that he has sent information to the Mexican forces stationed on the line warning them of the intended raid, and advising them to keep a sharp lookout for cow boys.

THE OHIO CAMPAIGN.

The Democratic State Committee ask the Republican Committee to Refrain from Partisan Feeling in the Campaign—The Latter Object.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

COLUMBUS, Sept. 18.—The following is published to-day:

COLUMBUS, Sept. 17.

Geo. K. Nash, Chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee: Dear Sir—During the week a long list of appointments ... and distinguished speakers of the republican party have been announced for Ohio beginning the 20th inst. The democratic committee has been ready to open the speaking of the campaign, but in consideration of the condition and critical illness of the president we have thought that patriotism and sorrow in the presence of that awful calamity to our country, demanded that partisan feeling be silent. The ... ings each day from the great sufferer grows gloomier, and indicate that death alone will end the tragedy. In view of the sad condition of affairs we wish to suggest to you that we are willing to avoid all discussion that will lead to bitterness, and out of respect to the president, this being his native state, if you will consent to the arrangement, we will not announce any meetings, provided you will withdraw your appointments. However, if you do not care to do it, our sense of duty compels us to say that we do not feel like opening the campaign while President Garfield lies at the door of death. Yours respectfully, CLARK IRVINE, chairman. GEO. ... secretary.

The Reply.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17.

Mr. Clark Irvine Chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee—Dear Sir—Your favor of this day is received. In reply I will say that the committee before it announced the opening of its campaign for the 17th inst., not the 20th, as stated in your letter, determined that a fair, honest and candid presentation of the principles of the republican party would be neither improper nor unpatriotic. Those principles President Garfield loved and advocated with all his great power. From his lifelong and magnificent record we know that triumph is most earnestly wished for by him. Whether by the will of Providence President Garfield lives or dies, its sacred duty obliges republicans to use all proper means to maintain those principles. President Garfield, when a soldier for the union, never faltered because eminent and useful commanders fell upon the field of battle. If Garfield's voice could be heard he would bid his old comrades not to abandon those principles because he suffers. In contesting for his own and their principles, republicans will follow his example and receive his commendation. Whether it is proper at this time to advocate the principles which the president always believed to be injurious to the country is a question for your committee to determine for itself. In conclusion let me assure you that no one can feel greater sorrow over the critical condition of President Garfield than those who stood by him and vindicated his honor and good name from all attacks less than one year ago. Very respectfully,

GEO. K. NASH,
Chairman Republican State Ex. Com.

THE NATIONAL LAND LEAGUE MEETING CLOSED.

Parnell Losing his Hold upon the Irish—Movements of the Land Leaguers—The Trades' Union Congress, Etc.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DUBLIN, Sept. 17.—On reassembling of the national land league convention Parnell announced a resolution calling upon farmers to express their sympathy with laborers by raising their wages and enabling them to live in something like decency and comfort. This was the outcome of the conference between the league executive and labor delegates.

Parnell's Programme.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Parnell's new programme is a desperate bid for the continuance of agitation. Fearing the defection of the country, he appeals to laborers to follow him in a wilder socialistic campaign, while he incites the tenants by the promise that he will abolish landlordism. He declares his intention to lead laborers in the tenants fight. The real object of the league is to secure legislative independence rather than peace and prosperity. This object is forced on the league by the action of its American societies. Happily it is a natural tendency of these movements to shrink in proportion to their extravagance. League excesses have already alienated Parnell's parliamentary following, while the land reform has shaken his hold on the tenantry, all after having already declared against him. Parnell's appeal to the laborers is a last resort. The scene presented by the leaguers at the exhibition meeting Wednesday shows, notwithstanding the money which the league voted it, they have no desire to promote the industrial prosperity of Ireland.

Parnell's Oration.

Parnell's speech at the national league convention yesterday, in which he said they proposed to test the act, not use it, was a surprise. It seems to have been made because he became aware there was a considerable undercurrent of discontent against the ... resolution. Fearing it would be taken as an acceptance of the land act, Parnell took ... to remove this impression.

A resolution was adopted recommending all members of the league to use Irish manufactures and empowering all branches of the league to adopt measures to encourage native industry.

Farmers and Farm Laborers.

DUBLIN, Sept. 17.—In the session on the resolution in regard to the sympathy of farmers with laborers, several speakers testified to the ... established between laborers and other parties of the league. Johnson, founder and secretary of the Irish laborers' league, was the best known speaker. He said the laborers wanted to show the world that they could best attain their ends by joining hands with Parnell. He said all efforts to separate them would be futile. He had no confidence in the land act. If the government did not release the "suspects," he thought it would be made for them. ... abusive language concerning the queen's resolution, unanimously adopted, and also the one urging farmers to set aside the land for use for laborers and of urging them the same proportionate rent as they paid themselves. The convention also adopted resolutions authorizing the establishment of industrial and labor departments in the central office of the league, and adding them to the land leagues. After a congratulatory address by Parnell the convention closed.

An Unsettled Feeling.

The country continues very unsettled. The system of intimidation continues in force and serious outrages are frequently are continually reported. There is a very bitter feeling between the people and police. One of the latter was set upon and maltreated by a mob in Dublin, Thursday night, when assisting in the arrest of a drunken fiend.

Opposed to the Opium Traffic.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—At the Methodist ecumenical council to-day a resolution condemning the opium traffic, with an addendum calling on the government to deliver the country from the guilt of supporting it passed. Bishop Peck strongly advocated both resolution and addendum. Rev. J. Green of the southern church read a paper on missionary work and Methodism abroad.

The Trades Union Congress.

Previous to closing the trades union congress today, a letter from American Minister Lowell was read, thanking the congress for the friendly and sympathetic feelings it had expressed relative to President Garfield. A resolution was passed calling on parliament for an act strictly prohibiting commercial corners.

The trades union congress, the most representative body of workmen and tradesmen here, made peculiar and emphatic demonstrations against the fair trade movement by the expulsion of a delegate whose expenses were paid by supporters of the fair trade league. This was a substantial condemnation of the trades union conference promoted by the fair trade league last week. It is clear that the best body of artisans are apathetic in regard to the so-called fair trade movement.

Inconsistency.

The gross inconsistency of tory advocacy of protection is shown by Mr. Lowther's following up his election on protection in Lancashire, by declaring in Westmoreland the other day that the time will never come when tax will be put on corn.

Injurious Speculation.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The most serious event of the day is the immense alteration to cotton trade caused by the corner and the combination of holders to break it down. Tens of thousands of hands have already been thrown out of employment. The corner was originally formed by Mr. Ranger, a large speculator of Liverpool, last year and this spring he bought all the cotton he could lay his hands on at between ... and ... a pound, and has now advanced the price ... This represents a ruinous loss to the spinners, ... of whom are among the largest cotton spinners. They believe that by stopping spindles the corner can be broken down, but doubts of the success of this expedient are entertained. Mr. Ranger can afford to hold on to his cotton better than spinners can afford to do without it. In the meantime he is ... delivery from the bears, who are losing thousands of pounds by every transaction. The ... are ... of course, have to bear the brunt of suffering. At Oldham alone wages to the amount of ... a week have been stopped. If this continues there must be great suffering and serious disturbance in cotton districts.

A Lively Old Man.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Sunday Herald's cable from Hamburg says: The active life of the emperor is the subject of general conversation. From a review near Hanover on Thursday of last week he proceeded direct to Dantzic. On Friday the interview with the czar took place. On Saturday he journeyed to the maneuvers near Konitz. He spent Saturday night in Berlin and left Sunday morning for Hamburg. Thence he came to Hamburg on Wednesday, leaving again for Itzehoe the same evening. He went to Kiel on Friday to witness the maneuvers, and on Sunday leaves for Baden Baden to attend the ... marriage festivities. On Tuesday he will take a rest at Baden. THE EGYPTIAN QUESTION.

Liable to Create Trouble among European Powers—Bismarck will Object to English Occupation of Egypt, and France is Unable to take a hand in the Question.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Herald's Cairo reporter has interviewed the khedive, who said: "The height of my ambition and all I live for is the happiness and prosperity of all the people in Egypt regardless of religion or nationality. Since my accession I have taken as my model the American Bill [illegible] admits of [illegible] function, neither of race nor religion. I have done all in my power to make those who live [illegible] feel that they have a home in Egypt. My task is beset with difficulties which [illegible] of the country [illegible] With God's help, however, I shall succeed in overcoming them. Arabi Bey has personally assured me of his loyalty." The Parisian journal of the [illegible] is suppressed. The real feeling here is hostile to Europeans. Present arrangement only tend to fan the smoldering discontent. England will not lack her threats with military force. France is [illegible] The Turks want Prince Bismarck's applause. Consuls Wolff and Comanos are wide awake to American interests.

The Egyptian Crisis.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Tribune says: Though the Egyptian crisis has closed the compromise is only temporary. Cherif Pasha, though honest, ... an Egyptian, is not strong. The hope that he may be able to remain in power depends only on his Arab sympathies, which are incompatible with European control. The real object of the movement is to get rid of foreign control. Cherif's chances are not good. He cannot please both parties. It is hoped that the minister of the interior will be able to devise a scheme for reducing the army. The Egyptian incident produces the expected intervention of Russia and Germany. The obvious intention of these eastern powers to have a voice in the settlement of the Egyptian question disturbs British tories, who regret that Beaconsfield declined Bismarck's advice to annex Egypt. The growing tendency of England to concentrate her attention on Egypt is a curious commentary on her foreign policy for the last thirty years. She finds now that it is becoming difficult to keep on good terms with France and that there is danger that Prince Bismarck might insist upon submitting the Egyptian question to a kind of European areopagus, so that the ... Triple Alliance ... may have an opportunity to retaliate on England for overthrowing the former Triple agreement. Before permitting British occupation of Egypt, the emperor of Germany will no doubt demand a guarantee against further English interference in European Turkey. The perplexities of France in connection with Tunis are all tending to confirm that ... Her hands are so tied that an enterprising British minister might seize Egypt. The English government is strongly pressed by many supporters of the French to compensate themselves in northern Africa provided they renounce all claim to Egypt. Notwithstanding that the French government suppressed the news, private information proves a deplorable insecurity of French commanders, and inefficiency of the army. Though as many troops have crossed the Mediterranean as there are British garrisons in India, the city of Tunis is practically besieged and the French main column is ... a dangerous plight.

Military Commission Proposed for Egypt.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—The report that France has proposed the establishment of an Anglo-French military commission in Egypt is incorrect. It is semi-officially stated that the report that France has consented to treat the question of compensation for Spanish victims at Saida is also incorrect. On the contrary, all rights of French sufferers by the Carlists and Cabals wars are formally reserved, and it is by mutual concession that the governments will be able to come to an understanding.

NATIONAL INSURANCE CO.

This Company is among the oldest and strongest companies in the world. Its organization dates back to 1824. Of the ninety-five companies doing business on this coast, and the 100 reporting to the New York insurance department, in point of paid up capital it ranks No. 9, while in point of assets it ranks No. 6. Adding its subscribed capital, subject to call, amounting to over $20,000,000, which, under the stringent laws of Great Britain governing unpaid capital, as fully illustrated in the failure of the Glasgow Bank, is available to the last dollar for its liabilities, it stands at the head of all the companies doing business in America; making in all, in actual resources, $33,752,590.66, and every policy issued pledges on its face, and in its contract binds its actual fire assets, every dollar of its authorized and subscribed capital of $30,000,000 to the payment of its fire losses.

MONDAY MORNING, SEPT. 19, 1881.

THE YEAR OF DROUTH.

In nearly every part of the United States, the Pacific slope only excepted, the crops this year have suffered to an unusual degree from drouth, and the result is a greatly diminished harvest. The press of the Mississippi valley states has adopted for this year the designation of "the year of the great drouth," but the worst effects are by no means confined to that section. The season has been particularly disasterous, also in the middle and eastern states, where the rocky and sandy soils require more rain than the loam of the west and south. In consequence of this havoc has been caused to all crops and to all vegetation. In New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, and Ohio, the corn crop amounts to very little. Of potatoes, what the bugs did not take the drouth destroyed, so that this esculent promises to be a rare and costly luxury. The pasture fields are said to be as bare and brown as in November. The leaves of the trees are ripening and falling to the earth as if nipped by untimely frosts. Wells and streams never dry before within the memory of living men are as destitute of water as is the midst of a great Sahara. In hundreds of the smaller towns and villages water has been as much an article of merchandise as milk, and was only procurable from long distance and at considerable cost. It has been very inconvenient and difficult to supply cattle and other stock with water, and on account of both feed and water all surplus stock, where possible, has sought a market. What is true of those eastern states is also true, in perhaps a modified degree, in some sections of the states further west, and also of Canada.

The Illinois State Journal, reviewing the harvest in the states of the great central belt, finds that of the early products wheat was about three-fourths and oats about half a full crop. These atone for the very general deficiency of the corn crop in certain localities, but on the whole that leading crop has experienced a very material falling off. Precisely, or approximately, what the deficiency of the food products in this country are, it is, perhaps, too early yet to calculate, but that there is deficiency enough to create even embarrassment and alarm will be best apparent as the autumn advances and winter comes on. Unfortunately the partial failure of cereals comes together with a general failure of fruits and vegetables, and also in a year when, not for drouth but for other causes, the crops of Europe have suffered great damage and loss. The boast which Americans have made that their country was so extensive that they could never suffer serious loss from diminished crops—that because of wide extent of country and dissimilar climates, fruitful seasons and favorable yields were assured as a whole, though particular sections might suffer—would appear to have been contradicted this year.

THE PRESIDENT.

There is nothing in the reports from the president to relieve the apprehensions of Saturday. On the contrary the gravity of the situation is painfully increased by recurrence of pyæmic chills and their debilitating effect. Latest bulletins furnish nothing to strengthen hope. It now seems once more hardly within possibility that the president can survive much longer. The violent alternations of hope and fear through which the people have passed during the last eleven weeks constitute an unexampled episode not only in the history of the country but of the world. As every citizen in the United States is a factor in its government, so a blow aimed at the heart of the chief executive of the nation wounds every citizen. It is resented by every citizen as a personal indignity; it is felt by every citizen as a personal grief, while no one is untouched by sympathy for the sufferings of the victim. Hence over every household of the land the great national sorrow hangs. Under such circumstances the extreme solicitude and tenderness which have characterized the sentiments of the whole people towards President Garfield and the members of his family are alike appropriate and creditable. It is a revelation of humanity and patriotism, and an assurance that neither the strife of politics nor the greed of gain has hardened the hearts of the American people. A great sorrow has been potent to soften and unite a great people. If the ray of hope of the president's recovery, which has at times seemed to brighten only to be again obscured, is destined now to be forever dispelled, there is no part of the land where the illustrious victim will not be sincerely mourned, no place where his memory will not be tenderly revered. On the other hand, if the now darkening ray of hope should brighten again, and if at last it should expand into the sunshine of full assurance of his recovery there would arise one general acclaim of gratitude and thanksgiving. But it must be said that there is every reason for fear, and extremely small reason for hope.

Undoubtedly it is true that the reason why the bonded debt of this country is in comparatively few hands is because the rate of interest on the bonds is so low that persons of limited means cannot afford to invest in them. One hundred thousand dollars will yield an annual income of only $3500; so that even a moderately wealthy man will usually seek more lucrative employment for his money. Until we reach the class of men who can put a good deal of money—say something like half a million at least—into United States bonds, we do not come to the class who can really afford to invest. One who has only $10,000 to invest would derive a yearly income of only $350, which is not in the least tempting. Rich men can afford to lay enough aside in this way, but others will put what they have into business, invest it in real estate, or use it in some way to secure an increase that will yield them a support, which no small investment in United States bonds would do. On this coast many who had but small sums used formerly to take a spy at stocks with them. But fortunately that is well over now, much to the regret of "steerers" for bonanza games.

The homicide that occurred last evening at the corner of Morrison and Second streets is a natural fruit of the style of "business" carried on in the premises. The place is known as one of the vilest, if not the very vilest, in town. A respectable newspaper cannot venture to describe the various infamies combined in such a place, nor scarcely to hint at them. But here we must say that no license to sell liquors under a roof where a bagnio is kept ought ever to be granted. Refusal of licenses in such cases is a duty on the part of the authorities, and would be supported by public opinion in an effective way. It may be asked how the authorities would know. They might not know in every case, but there are cases enough in the city which are sufficiently notorious. Any species of crime may be expected at any time from such a combination. The revolver is present in every instance, as a matter of course.

The Denver Tribune thinks the Union Pacific will not build to Oregon and that the Central Pacific will not build to the Missouri river, though the latter may have another connection with the east by the Denver & Rio Grande and Burlington route. It is rumored that Jay Gould has sold the bulk of his Union Pacific stock at high figures, and that his friends who are still in the directory are shaping such a road policy for the road as to involve it in numerous fights and impair its value, and then send its stock down. This done, Gould will be able to buy it again at a low figure, effect some skillful settlement of its complications, and make several millions on another boom. Railroad men allege that the Union Pacific is antagonizing everybody and everything, and the above surmise is said to afford the only rational explanation for such irrational course.

A Chicago paper gives an account of the organization of a railroad company at Fargo for development of the great wheat belt of Dakota. The road is to be called the Fargo & Northwestern, and construction will begin next spring. The scheme has been incubating for some months, and now the announcement is made that sufficient capital has been secured and that parties of surveyors will start at once to select the route. The intention of the company is to connect with the Canadian Pacific and thus eventually secure another through route to the Pacific coast. For many hundreds of miles the line of the road lies across a level prairie, where the expense of construction will be scarcely so much.

Dr. Agnew said recently: "There never has been a time from the day on which the president was shot that I have been very sanguine of his recovery." As to his treatment he said: "So far as I am capable of judging, everything that has been done from the day the wound was received until the present moment was dictated by sound surgery." The caution of Dr. Agnew in speaking of the case has been noticeable throughout.

Lawyers now argue that in case the president should die at Elberon or elsewhere outside of the district of Columbia, Guiteau could not be convicted under the laws of the district of his murder. It is argued that in such case the courts of the district would not have jurisdiction of the offense as homicide, but would be confined to a consideration of it as assault merely.

Of seventy-one arrests in Portland, Maine, week before last, sixty-one were for drunkenness; and yet Portland is the largest community in the world under thorough-going prohibition laws. Ostensibly there is not a glass of liquor, wine, ale or even hard cider sold there. Any such sale would be a criminal offense against the law, punishable by heavy penalties.

London's police duty is a huge item in the cost of maintaining the metropolis, and constantly growing. During the year 1880 25,000 new houses and seventy miles in length of new streets and squares were added to the metropolitan district, while to attend to this new duty the police force was increased by adding to it 250 officers and men.

This remark is floating round: "There does not seem to be much left in Washington but malaria, Guiteau and George C. Gorham." The public is entirely willing to see those three fight it out among themselves."

LITERARY NOTES.

"Sparks from a Geologist's Hammer," by Alexander Winchell, LL. D., author of "Pre-Adamites," and professor of geology and paleontology in the University of Michigan, is the title of a new illustrated volume announced for early issue by S. C. Griggs & Co., Chicago. It is a collection of more or less connected papers on scientific and semi-scientific themes. The authorship is a guarantee of learning and an entertaining style combined.

A substantial contribution to the coming centennial celebration at Yorktown is Mr. H. P. Johnston's volume, "The Yorktown Campaign," which Harper & Brothers will publish in a few days. The book is copiously illustrated with maps and fine engravings from famous historical paintings by Trumbull; Sir Joshua Reynolds, Gilbert Stuart and others. It is no little compliment to Mr. Johnston's accuracy that he has been consulted in locating the camping grounds of the militia from the various states, which it is designed to make identical with the camping grounds of the troops from their respective states a century ago.

Among elegant volumes for the approaching holiday season, H. C. Griggs & Co., Chicago, announce two for issue in October. One is "Lyrics of Home-Land," a new collection of poems by Eugene J. Hall, already widely and popularly known as a writer of felicitous verse. Many of them are in the quaint dialect of New England, and abound in homely, good-natured wit and humor. The volume will contain nearly fifty appropriate illustrations, and will be printed and bound in uniform style with "Songs of Yesterday," by Benj. F. Taylor, many of whose poems have already grown to be classics, and of which a new edition will be ready about the same time.

"Toby Tyler, or Ten Weeks with a Circus," by James Otis, is a very amusing and well illustrated juvenile story, describing the elopement of a small boy with a circus and his painful progress from the peddling of lemonade to the position of a leading juvenile performer in the ring, which summit of human glory he abandoned to find his way home again. Published by Harper & Brothers. Sold by A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.

MONDAY MORNING, SEPT. 19, 1881.

THE YEAR OF DROUTH.

In nearly every part of the United States the Pacific slope only excepted, the crops this year have suffered, to an unusual degree, from drouth, and the result is a greatly diminished harvest. The press of the Mississippi valley states has adopted for this year the designation of "the year of the great drouth," but the worst effects are by no means confined to that section. The season has been particularly disastrous, also, in the middle and eastern states where the rocky and sandy soils require more rain than the loam of the west and south. In consequence sad havoc has been caused to all crops and to all vegetation. In New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia and Ohio, the corn crop amounts to very little. Of potatoes, what the bugs did not take the drouth destroyed, so that this esculent promises to be a rare and costly luxury. The pasture fields are said to be as bare and brown as in November. "The leaves of the trees are ripening and falling to the earth as if nipped by untimely frosts. Wells and streams, never dry before within the memory of living men, are as destitute of water as if in the midst of a great Sahara. In hundreds of the smaller towns and villages water has been as much an article of merchandise as milk, and was only procurable from long distance and at considerable cost. It has been very inconvenient and difficult to supply cattle and other stock with water, and on account of both food and water, all surplus stock, where possible, has sought a market." What is true of those eastern states is also true, in perhaps a modified degree, in some sections of the states further west, and also of Canada.

The Illinois State Journal, reviewing the harvest in the states of the great central belt, finds that of the early products wheat was about three-fourths and oats about half a full crop. These atone for the very general deficiency of the corn crop in certain localities, but on the whole that leading crop has experienced a very material falling off. Precisely, or approximately, what the deficiency of the food products in this country are, it is, perhaps, too early yet to calculate, but that there is deficiency enough to create even embarrassment and alarm will be best apparent as the autumn advances and winter comes on. Unfortunately the partial failure of cereals comes together with a general failure of fruits and vegetables, and also in a year when, not for drouth but for other causes, the crops of Europe have suffered great damage and loss. The boast which Americans have made that their country was so extensive that they could never suffer serious loss from diminished crops—that because of wide extent of country and dissimilar climates, fruitful seasons and favorable yields were assured as a whole, though particular sections might suffer—would appear to have been contradicted this year.

THE PRESIDENT.

There is nothing in the reports from the president to relieve the apprehensions of Saturday. On the contrary the gravity of the situation is painfully increased by recurrence of pyæmic chills and their debilitating effects. Latest bulletins furnish nothing to strengthen hope. It now seems once more hardly within possibility that the president can survive much longer. The violent alternations of hope and fear through which the people have passed during the last eleven weeks constitute an unexampled episode not only in the history of the country but of the world. As every citizen in the United States is a factor in its government, so a blow aimed at the heart of the chief executive of the nation wounds every citizen. It is resented by every citizen as a personal indignity. It is felt by every citizen as a personal grief, while no one is untouched by sympathy for the suffering of the victim. Hence over every household of the land the great national sorrow hangs. Under such circumstances the extreme solicitude and tenderness which have characterized the sentiment of the whole people towards President Garfield and the members of his family are alike appropriate and creditable. It is a revelation of humanity and patriotism, and an assurance that neither the strife of politics nor the greed of gain has hardened the hearts of the American people. A great sorrow has been potent to soften and unite a great people. If the ray of hope of the president's recovery which has at times seemed to brighten only to be again obscured, is destined now to be forever dispelled, there is no part of the land where the illustrious victim will not be sincerely mourned, no place where his memory will not be tenderly revered. On the other hand, if the now darkening ray of hope should brighten again, and if at last it should expand into the sunshine of full assurance of his recovery, there would arise one general acclaim of gratitude and thanksgiving. But it must be said that there is every reason for fear, and extremely small reason for hope.

Undoubtedly it is true that the reason why the bonded debt of this country is in comparatively few hands is because the rate of interest on the bonds is so low that persons of limited means cannot afford to invest in them. One hundred thousand dollars will yield an annual income of only $3500; so that even a moderately wealthy man will usually seek more lucrative employment for his money. Until we reach the class of men who can put a good deal of money—say something like half a million at least—into United States bonds, we do not come to the class who can really afford to invest. One who has only $10,000 to invest would derive a yearly income of only $350, which is not in the least tempting. Rich men can afford to lay enough aside in this way; but others will put what they have into business, invest it in real estate, or use it in some way to secure an increase that will yield them a support, which no small investment in United States bonds would do. On this coast many who had but small sums used formerly to take a say at stocks with them. But fortunately that is well over now, much to the regret of "steerers" for bonanza games.

The homicide that occurred last evening at the corner of Morrison and Second streets is a natural fruit of the style of "business" carried on in the premises. The place is known as one of the vilest, if not the very vilest, in town. A respectable newspaper cannot venture to describe the various infamies combined in such a place, nor scarcely to hint at them. But here we must say that no license to sell liquors under a roof where a bagnio is kept ought ever to be granted. Refusal of licenses in such cases is a duty on the part of the authorities; and would be supported by public opinion in an effective way. It may be asked how the authorities would know. They might not know in every case, but there are cases enough in the city which are sufficiently notorious. Any species of crime may be expected at any time from such a combination. The revolver is present in every instance, as a matter of course.

The Denver Tribune thinks the Union Pacific will not build into Oregon and that the Central Pacific will not build to the Missouri river, though the latter may have another connection with the east by the Denver & Rio Grande and Burlington route. It is rumored that Jay Gould has sold the bulk of his Union Pacific stock at high figures and that his friends who are still in the directory are shaping such a mad policy for the road as to involve it in numerous fights and impair its value, and thus send its stock down. This done, Gould will be able to buy it again at a low figure, effect some skillful settlement of its complications, and make several millions on another boom. Railroad men say that the Union Pacific is antagonizing everybody and everything, and the above surmise is said to afford the only rational explanation for such an infatuated course.

A Chicago paper gives an account of the organization of a railroad company at Fargo for development of the great wheat belt of Dakota. The road is to be called the Fargo & Northwestern, and construction will begin next spring. The scheme has been incubating for some months, and now the announcement is made that sufficient capital has been secured and that parties of investors will start at once to select the route. The intention of the company is to connect with the Canadian Pacific, and has eventually secure another through route to the Pacific ocean. For many hundreds of miles the line of the road lies across a level prairie, where the expense of construction will be merely nominal.

Dr. Agnew said recently: "There never has been a time from the day on which the president was shot that I have been very sanguine of his recovery." As to his treatment he said: "So far as I am capable of judging everything that has been done from the day the wound was received until the present moment was dictated by sound surgery." The caution of Dr. Agnew in speaking of the case has been noticeable throughout.

Lawyers now argue that in case the president should die at Elberon or elsewhere outside of the district of Columbia, Guiteau could not be convicted under the laws of the district of his murder. It is argued that in such case the courts of the district would not have jurisdiction of the offense as homicide, but would be confined to a consideration of it as assault merely.

Of seventy-one arrests in Portland, Maine, week before last, sixty-one were for drunkenness, and yet Portland is the largest community in the world under thoroughgoing prohibition laws. Ostensibly there is not a glass of liquor, wine, ale or even hard cider sold there. Any such sale would be a criminal offense against the law, punishable by heavy penalties.

London's police duty is a huge item in the cost of maintaining the metropolis, and constantly growing. During the year 1880, 25,000 new houses and seventy miles in length of new streets and squares were added to the metropolitan district, while to attend to this new duty the police force was increased by adding to it 250 officers and men.

This remark is floating round: "There does not seem to be much left in Washington but malaria, Guiteau and George C. Gorham. The public is entirely willing to see those three fight it out among themselves."

LITERARY NOTES.

"Sparks from a Geologist's Hammer," by Alexander Winchell, LL. D., author of "Preadamites," and professor of geology and paleontology in the University of Michigan, is the title of a new illustrated volume announced for early issue by S. C. Griggs & Co., Chicago. It is a collection of more or less connected papers on scientific and semi-scientific themes. The authorship is a guarantee of learning and an entertaining style combined.

A substantial contribution to the coming centennial celebration at Yorktown is Mr. H. P. Johnston's volume, "The Yorktown Campaign," which Harper & Brothers will publish in a few days. The book is copiously illustrated with maps and fine engravings from famous historical paintings by Trumbull, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Gilbert Stuart and others. It is no little compliment to Mr. Johnston's accuracy that he has been consulted in locating the camping grounds of the militia from the various states, which it is designed to make identical with the camping grounds of the troops from their respective states a century ago.

Among elegant volumes for the approaching holiday season, H. O. Griggs & Co., Chicago, announce two for issue in October. One is "Lyrics of Home-Land," a new collection of poems by Eugene J. Hall, already widely and popularly known as a writer of felicitous verse. Many of them are in the quaint dialect of New England, and abound in homely, good-natured wit and humor. The volume will contain nearly fifty appropriate illustrations, and will be printed and bound in uniform style with "Songs of Yesterday," by Benj. F. Taylor, many of whose poems have already grown to be classics, and of which a new edition will be ready about the same time.

"Toby Tyler, or Ten Weeks with a Circus," by James Otis, is a very amusing and well illustrated juvenile story, describing the elopement of a small boy with a circus and his painful progress from the peddling of lemonade to the position of a leading juvenile performer in the ring, which summit of human glory he abandoned to find his way home again. Published by Harper & Brothers. Sold by A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.

CITY.

AN APPEAL FOR THE HOME.—For the first time in two years is the public of Portland asked to contribute in a small way to the support, and in return it promises, for the amount contributed, an evening's pleasant entertainment. The promenade concert announced to take place at Mechanics' pavilion next Friday evening ought to draw a large crowd: first, because the object is worthy; second, because the expense is very light; and third, because it furnishes every one an opportunity for meeting and greeting friends and acquaintances—the one feature above all others that made the fairs in 1879 and 1880 a financial success. It has been decided by the ladies of the society not to make a personal canvass, but to place tickets on sale at various leading stores. They appeal to the public on behalf of the twenty-four orphans whom Providence has deprived of natural protectors, who nevertheless are blessed with [illegible] care at the Home, and when old enough to leave, will, through exertions of the society, have permanent homes. The society has no capital; yet provision must be [illegible], and it has no capital: [illegible] a monthly outlay of $350. The resources [illegible] at least two thousand persons in Portland who can give one dollar and not miss the contribution.

BODY RECOVERED.—Saturday forenoon at about [illegible] the body of Frank Spalding, the unfortunate young man who fell from the wharf at the foot of E street a few days ago, was recovered by the men who were looking for it. The remains were taken by the father of the deceased to East Portland. Coroner Garnold was notified of the recovery of the body, but did not deem an inquest necessary. An examination was made by Dr. Rafferty, who ascertained that the neck of the young man had been fractured. This leaves no doubt that young Spalding was killed instantly by striking against the guard of the boat, which was moored at the wharf, and was not drowned. He never moved after falling in the water, as his arms were in the exact position when found as when he was seen to strike the water. The body was found only a few feet from the spot where he fell. The water at that place is about twenty feet deep. The remains were taken in charge by Court Willamette, Ancient Order of Foresters and buried under the auspices of that order yesterday afternoon.

FUNERAL OF MRS. JUDGE WATSON.—The Salem Statesman of Saturday says: "Upon the arrival of the 1:30 train yesterday, the remains were taken from the depot to the residence of Rev. P. S. Knight, where those who desired to could view the corpse, after which the remains were taken to the Congregational church, where the funeral services took place, Rev. P. S. Knight officiating. He delivered a discourse full of sympathy and hope for the bereaved parents, husband, child and friends of the deceased. The coffin was then placed in the hearse, and the procession slowly wended its way to the Odd Fellows' cemetery, where all that was left of Isabella Watson was consigned to her last, long rest. [illegible] Hon. R. P. Earhart, Hon. W. P. Lord, [illegible] Emanuel Meyer, John W. Minto, Hon. N. B. Knight and J. A. Stratton acted as pall-bearers."

GREY HEARD FROM.—The Albany Herald says: "Fred Reiss of this city has received a letter from C. Cunningham of Milton, a small town about ten miles this side of Walla Walla, dated Sept. 7, 1881, in which he mentions having received a visit from Grey, the late editor of the State Rights Democrat. It seems that Grey was known to both Reiss and Cunningham in former years in the state of Michigan, where he went by the name of Gardner, and was a cigar maker by trade. Here is what Cunningham says: 'A friend stayed with me last night and left this morning for Salt Lake. He sends regards to you and says keep mum; do not know what for. His name is Al. Grey. He will go overland to Kelton.'"

[illegible] MEETING.—The meeting of the open temperance organization last Saturday night was fairly attended, considering the condition of the weather. The address of the Rev. Mr. Izer was one of the [illegible] appeals in the cause that has been delivered in this hall. The piano solo of Mrs. Epperly was [illegible]. The quartette club, composed of Mr. Watkins and others, contributed a well-selected piece of music, singing it excellently. The meeting by a standing and unanimous vote endorsed the proposed amendment of the city ordinance requiring drinking places to be closed on Sunday, and other changes in limiting the hours for selling intoxicating liquors.

[illegible].—J. L. George the cutler, met with a very painful accident on Saturday. A small piece of steel from a knife blade which he was in the act of [illegible], broke off and flew into his eye, inflicting a painful injury. The piece was removed by a [illegible]. William Pickett, the old printer, who was [illegible] a short time since from St. Vincent's hospital, where he was sent on account of injuries received by falling down stairs, met with a similar accident Saturday afternoon. As he was ascending the stairs at No. 5 Washington street, one of his [illegible] slipped and he fell, inflicting a slight cut [illegible] and some severe bruises on his head.

HOOD RIVER L. AND M. CO.—The incorporators of the "Hood River Lumber and Manufacturing Company," incorporated for the purpose of conveying the waters of Hood river to the Dalles for manufacturing purposes, held a meeting on Friday evening last in this city and resolved to immediately proceed to survey and locate the route and to proceed to business. This enterprise will be of great benefit to the town of the Dalles. It is the intention of the company to build the flume so as to float wood and timber from the timbered mountains southwest of the Dalles to that town.

REPORTED DEATH OF LORD AIRLIE.—Saturday The Oregonian received the following telegram from London: "Lord Airlie is dead." Beyond this nothing has been received. Lord Airlie was in New [illegible] about twelve days ago, and expected to start [illegible]. Neither of the business institutions in Portland with which he is connected, nor [illegible], one of the managing directors, in the city have been advised of his death, and are disinclined to believe the report.

[illegible] ASH STREET.—The city surveyor has filed with the auditor the estimate for the improvement of Ash street from Front to Third. The work between Front and Second streets having been completed under a permit, the estimates show that the balance of the improvement will include 660 yards of [illegible] fill, 300 feet sidewalk and 1680 [illegible] of stone block pavement, and will cost [illegible]. The work will be let during the coming [illegible].

THE COLUMBIA.—The steamship Columbia will leave this (Monday) evening at 7 o'clock. Those who want their letters to go down on the steamer should deposit them to-day in the postoffice, and not in the street boxes except the business portion of the city. The last collection from the boxes in the business part of the city will be made at [illegible] P. M. to-day. As the steamer will leave at 7 the mails will close at 6 o'clock.

THE LAND LEAGUE.—The Irish land league held a [illegible] and interesting meeting yesterday afternoon. The usual musical exercises, under the direction of Mrs. Pitt, enlivened the proceedings. [illegible] Conroy's solo, "Eileen Alanna," was received with applause. The debate now occupying [illegible] the future action of the organization [illegible] was adjourned till next Sunday, when [illegible] will be presented.

[illegible].—The little tug Mary Taylor now [illegible] below Albina. She was purchased [illegible] since by Mr. Z. J. Hatch, who has caused [illegible] to be taken out of her. This machinery will be overhauled and placed in the new [illegible] being built by Mr. Hatch.

[illegible] LUMBER.—The bark Kate L. Davenport, [illegible] under charter to carry a cargo of [illegible] this port to Australia, is completing [illegible] St. Helens. Muckle Bros' new and [illegible] schooner is also loading lumber at [illegible] for San Francisco.

[illegible].—At half past one o'clock this morning [illegible], a longshoreman, was arrested, [illegible] assaulting a woman called Annie, who [illegible] Light saloon, on Yamhill street near [illegible]. He made a cut at her with a knife, inflicting [illegible] on the wrist.

[illegible] HURT.—Saturday a brick mason named [illegible] while working on the building now in course of construction on First street near Madison, [illegible] from the scaffold and striking on the joists of the [illegible] story was badly bruised. No bones were fractured.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Rev. J. H. Acton delivered an address last evening on the subject of temperance. The lecture is said to have been an able one, and made a deep impression on the large audience.

SOCIAL.—The ladies of the Baptist Church give a social this evening in the lecture room of the church. Refreshments will be served. Admission free. All are invited.

SHOT DEAD.

JULIA CLARK, A YOUNG GIRL, KILLED BY ROBERT W. LAMPERT.

In a Room Above Harrington's Saloon, Corner Second and Morrison—The Shooting Undoubtedly Accidental—A Theory of Suicide.

Yesterday afternoon, at half past five, Julia Clark, a young woman of eighteen, was shot in a lodging house on the southeast corner of Second and Morrison streets [illegible]. Up to a day or two before the fatal occurrence Miss Clark [illegible] Exchange saloon. It is stated that she had been invited there by Robert W. Lampert, who occupied an adjoining apartment. He had been drinking freely during the afternoon, and about half-past four [illegible] and was fast asleep. Just before [illegible] awoke [illegible] Miss Clark seated at a stand writing, Scott near her. [illegible] was thirsty, and he asked Scott to go down stairs and order drinks. Scott complied with the request and while waiting for the drinks he heard a pistol shot, as he supposed from the [illegible]. He stepped in front of the saloon and while looking up and down he heard cries from Lampert, who called repeatedly for Harrington [illegible]. Scott ran up, and asking the cause of Lampert's excitement was answered "the poor girl," "the poor girl," which was reiterated. Lampert threw himself on the [illegible] weeping and wailing, crying out all the while "it's too bad," "the poor girl." Miss Clark was found outstretched on the floor, a bullet hole below the left ear, which evidently penetrated the base of the brain. She did not live more than a minute. A revolver was found on the floor behind her. Lampert was arrested by policeman Joe Day and taken to the city jail. Coroner Garnold was notified, and conveyed the body to the morgue where an inquest will be held this morning.

LAMPERT'S STATEMENT.

When first taken to jail, Lampert's brain was muddled, and he talked incoherently, ejaculating the words above quoted and occasionally saying "It was all an accident." At eight o'clock an OREGONIAN reporter called to see him and asked for a statement. He refused at first to give an account of the affair, stating "it's bad for her family and bad for Julia, and the least said about it the better." When told that he was the only witness and that the public would be anxious to know just how the shooting occurred, he said: "Well, I woke up and looked around and saw the girl writing. I thought Scott was dictating a letter for her. I was thirsty and told Scott if he would order the drinks I would pay for them. He went downstairs and I got up and walked over to where Julia was sitting. I picked up a flower and asked her what it was. She responded, 'a dahlia.' I then took a revolver out—I never carried one in my life before—and showing it to her I said, 'here's a revolver that Schwab gave me a few days ago. What do you think of it?' Just then the revolver went off. It was all accidental."

"Were you not too drunk to remember exactly about the shooting?" asked the reporter.

"No, I wasn't," he answered. "I never got so drunk that I couldn't remember everything."

He had got this far along in his story when Judge Page was brought in by Frank Harrington, who stated that he had engaged the former to defend Lampert. The judge told Lampert to make no further statements to reporters or others. He answered the lawyer that he had nothing to conceal, and that he saw no harm in telling about the affair. But he conversed no farther.

A young man well acquainted with Lampert and the dead girl, says that the latter had threatened several times to commit suicide. She had a quarrel with her lover (not Lampert) a few days ago, and was engaged, so Scott thinks, in writing to him at the time of her death. The theory is advanced that she took the revolver from Lampert's hand and fired the shot.

It is certain that Lampert had no motive in killing the girl. He is represented by those who know him well as being industrious and good hearted, and free from malice or vindictiveness. He came here two years ago from New York, since which time he has been in the employ of Mr. [illegible], who has every confidence in him.

TO MARK A FIREMAN'S GRAVE.

A handsome monument to the memory of the late William O. Bruen, who filled for two terms the responsible position of chief engineer of the Portland fire department, has been completed and will shortly be placed in position above his grave in the firemen's plat in Lone Fir cemetery. The design is very appropriate. On the face is carved in relief three fire fronts, representing the different positions he held in the department, member of Columbia Engine Co. No. 3, chief engineer and exempt. The fronts are entwined among flowers and rest on a large raised shield in the shape of a fire front, on which is carved the following inscription: "Our brother, William O. Bruen, born Jan. 2[illegible], 18[illegible], died Feb. 20, 1880.

This tablet to a brother's love
Is raised by sisters left;
His soul in bliss is now above,
His friends on earth bereft."

WATERY GRAVES.

A Boat Containing Ten Men Capsized in the Columbia, near Multnomah Falls.

Davis, Manning, Johnson and Two Others are Drowned.

Saturday afternoon news reached this city that five men were drowned Friday evening near Multnomah falls, on the upper Columbia by the capsizing of a small boat. It was stated that ten men belonging to Watson's gang, working on Thompson & Smith's contract for clearing the line of the O. R. & N. Co., were returning [illegible] in a small boat with their [illegible], and owing to the boat being overloaded it was swamped. [illegible]

No further particulars of the disaster could be obtained from [illegible] Rooster Rock [illegible] Multnomah falls, owing to the trouble on the line [illegible] brought to [illegible] those on board had got [illegible] until they reached [illegible].

However, the following dispatch was received last evening from Multnomah Falls, concerning the sad affair:

On the evening of the 16th inst. [illegible] left Robinson's camp, near Multnomah Falls, to go to [illegible] two miles below here, where [illegible] meeting with the disaster [illegible] Watson, [illegible] other men. The other boat [illegible] baggage and [illegible] men. When about one mile below Robinson's store, the boat began to fill with water and commenced sinking so rapidly that five men jumped out, and endeavoring to [illegible] again capsized. The remaining [illegible] the boat and shouted for help. Assistance, however, did not reach him for nearly an hour. George Atherton, with a surviving party, heard their shouts and came to their relief, and but for their timely succor all would have been lost. One young man named A. Johnson, spoke to an old man about 55 years of age who was in the water, and [illegible] to climb [illegible] to shore. The old man did so, and both were drowned. Only the names of three who were drowned could be ascertained [illegible] Davis, [illegible] Manning and A. Johnson. The saved are Foreman Watson and some others whose names could not be ascertained. None of the bodies have been recovered.

WRECK OF THE BARK RIVAL.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

ASTORIA, Sept. 18.—C. L. Hansen, [illegible] pilot, who had charge of the bark Rival yesterday when she went ashore, has just arrived from the wreck. He states that he boarded the ship at 6 A. M. with wind southward to westward, and favorable for sailing. He sailed over the bar, and then the wind chopped round to east. They hailed the tug Astoria, following behind. She gave hawser. In taking in the heaving line parted. Could not wear ship round, and let go the starboard anchor. The tug could not get near enough to give any assistance. There was a heavy sea on. The chain parted in five fathoms of water. Let go second anchor. Got out 75 fathoms of chain and vessel swung up in three fathoms of water under the stern. Heavy breakers all round the ship. Clewed up all sails. Ship drifting toward shore. At 1:30 P. M. she struck bottom the first time, and hung on there till 3:30, vessel striking heavily several times. Fearing to lose the men's lives if they continued to hang on, they slipped the port chain. The vessel went ashore. Lowered a boat and Capt. Adams and wife, and all hands left the ship and reached shore safely. The vessel lies on the beach between Disappointment and McKenzie's head. A low water [illegible] all around her. Capt. Adams and men are at the wreck saving all they can.

WESTERN WASHINGTON CROPS.

[Olympia Transcript.]

The grain crops of Western Washington this season are more than an average yield. The grain is well [illegible] and plump and will weigh heavier and be in better condition for milling than last year. Western Washington will come nearer supplying the home market for breadstuffs this year than ever before. The hay crop was not as large as usual by reason of the cold spring but was all secured in good condition. Hay seldom brings as high a price at this season of the year as is now offered for it. Should the coming winter be a hard one feed will be scarce and very high. Some of the logging camps are supplied by the millowners, who ship wild oats hay from California in their lumber vessels. Several camps, using large quantities of hay depend almost entirely on the hay grown here. The vegetable crop is excellent this season, but not sufficient to supply the market, and large quantities are being shipped from California and Oregon. Apples, pears and plums are scarcer than ever before known, but of small fruits there seems to be a good supply. Of wild fruits there has been a great variety, and an unusually large crop of cranberries is assured. As soon as hop-picking is over the Indians along the Sound expect to reap a good harvest of wild cranberries. The hop crop, which is principally confined to Pierce, Thurston and King counties, is excellent and is being secured in splendid condition. The fine weather, if it continues a few days longer, will see this crop all secured. The hops are well filled with pollen and will weigh much heavier than last year's crop, which will mark them up to first class for foreign markets. Every grower is sure of realizing a handsome price this year. On the whole the farmers of Puget Sound basin have no cause to grumble over the results of this season's labor, and at the close of the year will find themselves well paid for every legitimate effort made to improve their condition. The market prices for everything is remunerative, if not above the average. Every farmer and almost every rancher has something to sell this year, including butter, eggs, chickens, etc.

A Little More History.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Gen. E. F. Bullard, a life-time democratic politician of New York, insists that Wm. H. Seward, and not Gen. Scott, was primarily responsible for the failure to reinforce Fort Sumter during Buchanan's administration. Scott was nominated for president in 1852 chiefly through Seward's influence. He was afterwards grateful to the New York senator, and was guided by him in political matters. After the election of Lincoln Mr. Seward still believed that the rebels could be conciliated. He wished to temporize, to withdraw the garrison if necessary, and to give no pretext for a rupture. He accordingly advised Scott to adopt a dilatory policy which Judge Black has so severely commented upon. Even after the inauguration of Lincoln Seward was a pronounced peace man, and was overruled at last when it was decided to attempt the reinforcement of Maj. Anderson. These are the opinions of Gen. Bullard. But it should be borne in mind that he was a bitter opponent of Seward, and would not be apt to take a favorable view of the latter's character and motives. The matters of fact concerning the attempted reinforcement of Fort Sumter now have only a slight historical interest. Whoever was responsible for the delay, it was a [illegible] blunder. It united and justified the north, and from that hour, imposed the burden of political defense upon the south.

The population of Great Britain, France, Germany and Austria are nearly equal. Great Britain [illegible]; France [illegible]; Germany [illegible]; and Austria-Hungary [illegible]. The aggregate is about [illegible]. These empires comprise an aggregate area of [illegible] square miles of territory. The states and territories of the American union, exclusive of Alaska, embrace an area of [illegible] square miles with a population of only [illegible].

BURNED AT SEA.

The Ship Olympus takes Fire and is Burned to the Water's Edge—Crew and Passengers Saved.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

PORT TOWNSEND, Sept. 18.—The ship Olympus, Capt. Edwards, from San Francisco to Seattle, with a cargo of hay, [illegible] the morning of the 1[illegible]th, when in latitude north 47, longitude west 125 [illegible] was discovered [illegible] despite the efforts of the captain and crew [illegible]. All hands, numbering twenty-seven souls, passengers and crew took to the boats and were picked up the same day by [illegible], Capt. Hinds, and taken to Port Discovery. The following is an account of the disaster, given to your correspondent by [illegible] Pinney [illegible], who was a passenger on board:

"About half past [illegible] on the morning of the 1[illegible]th I was standing near the after hatch when I heard the cry of 'fire.' The captain appeared immediately on deck and gave the order to close the fore hatch, get buckets ready and the pumps to work. The order was promptly obeyed. A portion of the aft hatch was then taken off and water pumped into the hold. [illegible] was coming out of the hold aft. [illegible] When the fire [illegible] the captain gave the order to clear away the boats and all on board safely embarked, taking their most valuable effects. Together with the master and crew there were three ladies, the captain's wife and daughter, and Mrs. Lewis. Fortunately we fell in with the ship War Hawk, a few hours after, bound for Port Discovery, which gave us assistance and took us on board, after which we were transferred [illegible] Capt. Hinds and his estimable wife. Too much praise cannot be given to Capt. Edward for his coolness and bravery under the trying circumstances. He was the last to leave the ship, and his orders throughout were promptly obeyed, thereby saving the lives and a good part of the property of those on board. Before night fell nothing was seen of the ship Olympus but a black charred hulk. All unite in praising the conduct of Capt. Hinds and his wife, who did everything they could for the unfortunate party and landed them safely at Port Discovery."

Collision at Sea.

Bark Arkwright arrived this morning, having had her jibboom [illegible] last evening in the Straits with a vessel supposed to be the ship [illegible]. The latter was also considerably injured.

TEMPERANCE.

FOREST GROVE, Sept. 1, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The question must force itself upon the mind of every earnest wisher for the suppression of intemperance why has so little been gained by the army of temperance workers? Why does the enormous evil of intemperance still ride triumphantly over the fair heritage of earth holding man (who was created in the image of his maker and but a little lower than the angels) down to an abyss of woe and degradation deeper and darker than that peopled by demons of hades?

Why is it, considering the vast and varied means and methods employed for its suppression, that the liquor traffic is as extensive and gigantic to-day as it ever has been? That there are as great a number of drunkards in our land in proportion to the population as there has ever been? Public sentiment, the elucidation of truth, the platform, the press, the sabbath school and above all the gospel of the Son of God, have not labored in vain. Only eternity shall reveal the great harvest of good, the amount of redemption accomplished by their vast influences. Still the result seems incommensurate with the means, and we should ask ourselves if there are not other and more efficient means to be used for the redemption of mankind from the curse of alcohol.

In canvassing the subject of temperance we often hear it remarked by lecturers that there is no new ground to occupy; that there is nothing new to be said upon the subject and their course is usually to depict in every aspect of hideousness the deplorable and blighting effects of the use of liquor. This fearful revelation has no doubt accomplished the purpose of deterring many from the terrible doom of the drunkard, when they have been able to discover a way of escape by laying hold of the cross of Christ and exercising almost superhuman moral strength and endeavor. But a person once addicted to the use of stimulants, whether in the form of alcohol or otherwise, possesses little of that inherent power; and though he may be fully aware of all the darkness of despair which awaits him in the future, he has no strength to flee the wrath to come unless a plain way is shown him whereby he may escape. Let us ask, is there not such a way? we think there is. Are not our hearts already bleeding over the wreck and ruin caused by stimulants. We see it, feel it, hear it, in every phase and form of horror. Why then harp forever and forever more upon the effects.

Let us turn our attention towards the cause and remedy. It is a law of the creator that effect shall follow cause as surely as that there is a creator. Like causes produce like effects, let us then ask what are the causes of these deplorable effects which we spend so much time in bemoaning and rehearsing? Ninety-nine persons in a hundred would say—alcohol. Alcohol is the entire cause. Granted that it is a secondary cause, but not a first cause, and, if every drop of alcohol were swept from the face of the earth to-day, in two days thereafter the ingenuity of man backed by an abnormal appetite would invent some other substance which would have the same effect upon the nerve centers the disturbance of which constitutes drunkenness.

It behooves us then to inquire what sort of an education fosters this morbid unnatural appetite? If it is not natural depravity? If it were we should all alike possess it at birth. It is entirely unnatural as is well known by all who are at all conversant with the tastes of children. The taste of liquor unadulterated is repulsive to all who do not inherit an abnormal condition of the nervous system from ancestors who have been accustomed to the use of stimulants in some form or other.

This appetite then is acquired and not natural. It is fostered and educated by a certain process, and the parents and educators of the children are responsible for that training. The Rev. Dr. J. C. Jackson, a physician, chief of the Home Sanitarium at Dansville, N. Y., who has spent many years of an earnest life in the redemption of man from the curse of intemperance, affirms as the result of long observation and experiment that to the [illegible] habits of our people must be attributed the appetite for stimulants so prevalent in the land. That a nation reared upon stimulating food instead of that which is nutritious, have fostered in earliest childhood the appetite for strong drink by the use of flesh meats the stimulants of which is as pernicious to the nerve centers, only less in degree, as the product of distillation, together with tea and coffee, and condiments, as pepper, spice, ginger, etc., with the addition of drug medicines, by the use of which is induced an unnatural elevation of the nervous system, the reaction of which it demands [illegible], usually in the form of tobacco, the most powerful vegetable poison known to toxicologists. [illegible] process of alternate elevation and depression of the nerve centers [illegible] does not indulge the fondness or necessity for [illegible] thus induced, he says is only [illegible] influence of the most strenuous [illegible] this sort of education of the nervous system by which it becomes accustomed to an abnormal condition, is essentially drunkenness only less in degree than that induced by liquor and is always [illegible] to the use of alcohol. This disease is only to be overcome by removal of the cause, namely abstinence from stimulating food of every sort, and this remedy the doctor and his co-workers have used with unvarying success, [illegible] who were enslaved by the demon appetite.

Upon this hypothesis, then, it becomes patent to every candid mind that the manner of procedure with most temperance workers has been [illegible] attempting to destroy this [illegible] tree by continued hacking at its branches, while only the blow which severs the deepest root can fell the monarch. We hold up to the moral [illegible] the enormity of his [illegible] the use of spirituous liquor while we nourish and foster the use of flesh, drugs and tobacco, [illegible] from which he [illegible] escape.

Mothers, have you not a work before you? Do you not hold the balance of power in this matter? [illegible] where are sown the seeds of misery, to be harvested in after years? [illegible] whose bodies shall be fit temples for the indwelling of the holy spirit?

MONDAY MORNING, SEPT. 19, 1881

ONE FAITH IN MANY FORMS.

What is His name? What name will all express Him,
The mighty Whole, of whom we are but part?
So that all differing tongues may join a worship,
Echoing in every heart?

Then answers one—"God is an endless sequence,
Incapable of either break or flaw,
Which we discern but dimly and in fragments;
God is unchanging Law."

"Nay," said another, "Law is but His method.
Look back, behind the sequence to its source;
Behind all phases and all changes seek Him:
God is the primal Force."

"Yea, these are great, but God himself is greater:
A living harmony, no dead cold rule,"
Saith one who in sweet sounds and things of beauty
Hath found his soul's best school.

"Law, force and beauty are but vain abstractions,
Too unconnected with the life of Man,"
One answers: "Man hath neither time nor power
Such mighty thoughts to scan.

"But here upon the earth we find Him living,
And though in little time He fall and pass,
And all his faiths, and hopes, and thoughts die with him,
Surely, as ripened grass;

"Yet Man the race—man as he may be—will be,
Once he has reached unto his full-grown height,
Calm, wise, large-hearted and large-souled, will triumph,
In self-renouncing might.

"Who will not own, even now, with sight prophetic,
Life is divinest in its human dress,
And bend before it with a yearning reverence,
And strong desire to bless?"

Yea! Worship chiefly Love, but also beauty,
Wisdom and force; for they are all divine!
But God includes them, as some great cathedral
Includes each separate shrine.

So, Brothers, howsoe'er we apprehend him,
Surely 'tis God himself we all adore,—
Life of all life, Soul of all souls, the Highest,
Heart of all hearts, and more.

THE NORTHWEST.

Western Oregon.

There were 66 wagons unloaded at the Grangers' warehouse in Dallas last Wednesday.

The owners of the Mary Taylor have dismantled her. The machinery goes into the new coasting steamer building at East Portland.

The piling for the Union Packing Co's new cannery below Astoria is nearly all driven, and they are busy capping and planking. Life and activity prevails along the bay toward Smith's point.

Boat-loads of stone from the quarries across the bay are being landed in Astoria for the foundation of the new jail, the walls of which are now assuming shape and will soon be ready for timbers.

The railroad bridge at Lafayette from bluff to bluff is about 1300 feet long, with an average height of about 65 feet. The span across the river is 160 feet long and 103 feet from the water to the lower cord and 125 feet from the water to top of the upper cord.

A. Hill, on Wapato lake, set fire to a slashing on last Saturday and the fire got from the burning slashing into the field of Mr. S. Stott, and burned up 600 bushels of wheat that had been threshed and left piled in the field, and before the fire was subdued several fences were consumed for Mr. Stott and others.

Washington Territory.

Loggers in the vicinity of Olympia are very busy, the demand exceeding the supply and no logs in the water.

The new Ledger building at New Tacoma will be built of brick, 48x40, two stories high, with an engine room attached.

A new safe, arrived last week for Pierce county. It weighs 6900 pounds and cost $525 exclusive of freight and insurance.

Three thousand five hundred tons of wheat awaited shipment at the Walla Walla depot on the 16th, a gain of 1500 tons in two days.

The shipments of coal from Seattle to San Francisco during the first eight months of the current year aggregated 548,355 tons, an increase over the shipments during the same period last year of 175,411 tons.

The Spring Valley Water Company has filed articles of incorporation in the secretary's office at Olympia. The incorporators are Louis Sohns, T. H. Cann, Amos Millerland others, and they purpose supplying Seattle with water.

Lister & Co.'s foundry and machine shop at Tacoma are now turning out ten car wheels per day and are also busy on a thirty-ton brass contract. Their new machine shop, 30x110, is receiving the machinery brought out from the east by the steamer Mississippi.

About a month ago an inmate of the asylum at Steilacoom named Greulic made his escape, and by walking and stowing himself away on various steamers finally succeeded in reaching Fort Townsend, where he was arrested on the 14th inst. and returned to his keepers.

N. C. Williams and sons, on Pataha Prairie, raised twelve thousand bushels of grain this season; over ten thousand bushels being wheat. They have sold five thousand bushels to the Pataha City Mills. Some of their wheat went as high as forty bushels to the acre, all on hill land.

The lumber mills at Port Gamble have shut down for a few days, in order that some needed repairs may be made. A new slip will be put up leading into the new mill and other improvements made. The Henry Buck and barkentine Rustler are the only vessels there in port at present.

Hop picking is in full blast, but the force is short. But if the present favorable weather should hold for a fortnight, the whole crop will be secured in good condition. Last year the total acreage planted in hops in the Puyallup valley amounted 511½ acres, distributed among 42 persons; this season the hop fields aggregate fully 700 acres, with little if any increase of ownership over last season. The yield per acre will also exceed that of last year, and the quality of the hops is much better.

The county superintendent of schools for Columbia county reports the number of children of school age in that county at 3,780; number of teachers employed during the past year, 49. During the year eight new districts have been organized and two, having failed to comply with the law, have lost their organization. Wages paid male teachers range from $35 to $80 per month and paid females from $26 to $60. Dayton has the only graded school, but vigorous efforts are being made to reduce all the schools in the county to one system of teaching.

J. W. Driver, who has been exploring the Cascade range in the interest of the N. P. R. R., recently penetrated to within 10 miles of the snow line on Mt. Rainier. He tells of huge timber in that region, having measured one cedar tree which girted 28 feet, and for a distance of 100 feet it was devoid of knot or limb. Thousands of fir trees in this timber belt he found to be 7 and 8 feet in diameter, from each could be manufactured clear lumber for a hight of 100 feet. He is confident this timber is easily accessible by the construction of a tram road of a few miles in length, to connect with the Puyallup branch.

Indian Mound Builders.

[Prof. N. H. Winchell.]

We are not without testimony to the fact that the present Indian tribes did build mounds. Lewis and Clark mention the custom among the Omahas, saying that "one of their great chiefs was buried on a hill, and a mound twelve feet in diameter and six feet in height erected over him." Bertram states that the Choctaws covered the pyramid of coffins taken from the bone-house with earth, thus raising a conical hill or mound. Tomochichi pointed out to General Oglethorpe a large conical mound near Savannah, in which he said the Yamacraw chief was interred, who had, many years before, entertained a great white man with red beard, who entered the Savannah river in a large vessel, and in his large canoe up to the Yamacraw bluff. Feathers onhaugh, in his "Travels," speaks of the custom among the Osages, referring to a mound built over the body of a chief, called Jean Defoe by the French, who unexpectedly died while his warriors were absent on a hunting expedition. Upon their return they heaped a mound over his remains, enlarging it at intervals for a long period, until it reached its present hight. Beadford says that many of the tumuli formed of earth, and occasionally of stones, are of Indian origin. They are generally sepulchral mounds—either the general cemetery of a village or tribe, funeral monuments over the graves of illustrious chiefs, or upon a battle-field, commemorating the event and entombing the fallen, or the result of a custom prevalent among some of the tribes, of collecting at stated intervals the bones of the dead and interring them in a common repository. A mound of the later description was formerly situated on the low grounds of the Rivanna river, in Virginia, opposite the site of an old Indian village (Jefferson's "Notes on Virginia," pp. 100, 103). It was forty feet in diameter and twelve feet in hight, of a spheroidal form, and surrounded by a trench, whence the earth employed in its erection has been excavated. The circumstances attending the custom alluded to were, the great number of skeletons, their confused position, their situation in distinct serata, exhibiting different stages of decomposition, and the appearance of bones of infants. A mound of similar character and constructed in layers or strata at successive periods, existed near the south branch of the Shenandoah, in the same state. A tumulus of stones, in New York State, is said to have marked the grave of a distinguished warrior (McCauley's "History of New York," volume ii., p. 280); Beck's Gazetteer (p. 308) states that "a mound of the largest dimensions has been thrown up, within a few years, in Illinois over the remains of an eminent chief."

Bonaparte and Barras.

[From the London Globe.]

The doctrine that human affairs are regulated by chance or luck, and that great fortunes are made more by the combination of propitious circumstances than by the intrinsic merits of the fortune-maker, has generally been thought to derive support from the story of the First Napoleon. It is often believed that the hero of Austerlitz and Jena might have been a great general and nothing more, if a peculiar accident had not led to his early acquaintance with the French capital, and to that most notable incident of his early life, when he saved the directorate from impending ruin and Paris from the mob. However this may be, it is certainly interesting to know how far the accepted records of this circumstance are correct, and how the first impulse was given to the rise of a name and character the most celebrated in modern times. A granddaughter of one of the persons engaged in those events has just written to the French papers to protest against the story that Barras first procured the appointment of Bonaparte to the command of the troops in Paris. According to her version, Barras was altogether at a loss where to look for a man who would fight his battles against the sections, whose rage against the directors was on the point of breaking out into violence. The established government, silly and corrupt as it was, had a sufficient body of troops under its command to resist the violence of the insurgent masses. But it had no man of experience and popularity to whom it would intrust the task of leading these soldiers. Barras, accordingly, applied to Citizen Larache, as his granddaughter rather grotesquely calls him—to know if he could recommend a man, and then the name of Napoleon was mentioned. But Barras, it appears, in her, turned up his nose at the suggestion, and even refused to sign the order appointing him, so that this document, which is still preserved, bears only the single signature of Larache, who was at that time president of the Assembly. Had the order been cancelled by any one of the directors, the history of France and of Europe since that time might have been very different from what it has been.

Mr. Alcott says: "Heaven trims our lamps while we sleep." If this is true, it removes one of the most serious objections to burning kerosene oil. But the statement looks like a fresh evidence of the far-reaching corruption of the oil monopoly.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

CALIFORNIA.

The Heresy Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—The Call to-morrow will publish about three columns of interviews in connection with the recent heresy trial, on the side of the opposition with Mrs. Roberts and Revs. Fiske and Williams, and on the part of the defense Mrs. Cooper and Revs. Hemphill and Woodbridge. Mr. Roberts thought Mrs. Cooper was let off too easy. Dr. Fiske expressed his regard for Mrs. Cooper and thought that Calvary church had merely decided too quickly in her favor. Dr. Williams thought that the charge of unsoundness against Mrs. Cooper was established. Dr. Hemphill had no fault to find with the decision, thought it was not adverse to Mrs. Cooper, and that he and Calvary church was more than ever convinced of her fitness as a teacher, with which view Dr. Woodbridge practically coincided. Mrs. Cooper simply elaborated the points of her case from which it would appear that nothing definite had been decided after an acrimonious discussion of the question for the last two weeks.

Heretical Mrs. Cooper.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—An unusually large meeting of Mrs. S. A. Cooper's bible class was held in Calvary church this afternoon. The lady spoke of her experiences during the late trial and also made some remarks on Kindergarten schools. Mrs. Cooper said the presbytery had referred Mrs. Cooper's case back to Calvary church for settlement, and that church now had the question in its own hands.

The Anniversary of Chilian Independence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—Residents Chilians here celebrated the anniversary of the independence of their country, literary exercises and a ball at Platt's Hall last night.

Postponed.

Justice of the Peace Connolly's case for assault and vulgar language was postponed yesterday until Tuesday, because of a point of law raised that justices of the peace could only be tried in a superior court.

San Francisco Shocked.

A sharp shock of earthquake was felt in San Francisco and around the bay at about 3:30 this afternoon. No damage in the city.

Laundry Burned.

The steam laundry of St. Matthew's hall, in San Mateo burned last night; loss, $2000.

The Usual Suicide.

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 17.—Edward Jones, about 22 years of age, a farm hand employed by P. Barth, about four miles from this city, suicided by shooting himself through the head this afternoon. No cause assigned.

To be Released.

SAN JOSE, Sept. 17.—The Mussel Slough prisoners have received notification from McBride & Highton, their attorneys in San Francisco, that they will be released from jail next Saturday, the 24th inst., which date is the expiration of their term of eight months' imprisonment, without the payment of the fine of $300.

The San Rafael Forest Fires.

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 17.—The fire has taken a fresh start. It has got over into Coyote hollow on Throckmorton's ranch, another section, if it runs up north towards the summit of the mountain. Blythedale has had another narrow escape to-day. It was entirely surrounded by fire at one time and only saved by the exertions of those engaged fighting it with fire. It is working its way down towards Saucelito.

NEVADA.

Comstock Notes.

VIRGINIA CITY, Sept. 17.—Visitors are not yet permitted to enter the Sierra Nevada mine. Superintendent Rooney's statement says that the joint Union Consolidated winze has been sunk and timbered sixteen feet, but says nothing in regard to water at passed through. The advance in the crosscut on the 2500 level is given, but nothing about the nature of the ground. Senator Fair refuses to be interviewed in regard to what kind of work is being done at the bottom of the winze. He will only say that all is going on well, and that there will be more to be said in due time. The east drift from the joint Ophir and Mexican winze on the 200 level, has passed into a mixture of quartz clay and porphyry that gives low assays. The ground is soft and dry. The bulkheads are being taken out of the drifts in the Bonanza mines between the C. and C. shaft, and the old stopes in which was the fire. The Alta pumps started last night, and work well. At the Yellow Jacket the north winze from the 2825 level is down 167 feet on the stope, the bottom being hard and dry. The north drift of the 3000 level is out 212 feet in hard, dry ground.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

A Righteous Sentence.

PORT TOWNSEND, Sept. 17.—In the district court to-day the Russian murderer, Henry Mersie, who was yesterday allowed to plead guilty to manslaughter, was sentenced to fourteen years in the penitentiary at Seatco, and to pay all the costs of the trial. The severity of the sentence gives general satisfaction to this community.

Sailed.

The steamer Empire sailed for San Francisco today.

PARAGRAPHIC DETAIL.

If the James brothers keep on robbing railroad trains at this rate, they can afford to offer more for their freedom than the railroads can for their capture.

The Sultan of Turkey is in such a nervous condition that the rooms he inhabits are surrounded, night and day, with an extra guard of black eunuchs. He fears assassination.

The largest span of wire in the world is the telegraph across the river Kistnah in India. It is 6000 feet long, and connects the summits of two mountains, each 1200 feet high.

Accurate observation by the Atlanta Constitution: "The latest invention of the New York democrats is a committee of one hundred. This is like adding a calliope to a tin-pan serenade."

"There's some things as old as the hills anyhow," said old Uncle Reuben. "What are they?" asked his niece. "They're the valleys between 'em, child," solemnly answered the old man.

Dr. Bliss said that whisky had done more for the president than prayer. No wonder that the ghost of Mrs. Hayes' temperance society stalks the gloomy corridors of the white house in majestic wrath.

John W. Bookwalter, the democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, has a 20,000 acre sheep ranch in Pawnee county, Nebraska. When he misses the Ohio election he will still have considerable territory to govern.

The London Lancet says there is no warmth in clothes. This will be cheering intelligence to young gentlemen who left their ulsters in charge of their uncle last spring, now that the season of cold weather approaches.

In the eastern states, notwithstanding the long drouth, there has been no united effort to pray for rain. The other denominations think it would be a recognition of the claims of the Baptists, to whom the drouth is causing great inconvenience.

"Why, doctor, what are you looking at?" exclaims Mrs. Edson; "it's time to give the president his medicine." And Dr. Bliss loth y turns away from the spectacle of pretty ankles and bare arms, at which, with a cold, anatomical eye, he has been gazing by the hour.

A gentleman from the country recently took rooms at a New York hotel, and looked at the printed notice in his bedroom: "Please do not blow out the gas." The occupant of the adjoining room heard him remark: "I pay my money, and I am going to blow out the gas if I want to."

The Physical Constitution of Matter.

[Popular Science Monthly.]

Modern science declares that every substance consists of an aggregation of extremely small particles, which are called molecules. Thus, if we conceive a drop of water magnified to the size of the earth, each molecule being magnified to the same extent, it would exhibit a structure about as coarse-grained as shot; and these particles represent real masses of matter, which, however, are incapable of further subdivision without decomposition. A lump of sugar, crushed to the finest powder, retains its qualities; dissolved in water, the mass is divided into its molecules, which are still particles of sugar, though they are far too small to be seen by the highest powers of the microscope. The physical subdivision of every body is limited by the dimensions of its molecules; but the chemist can carry the process further. He "decomposes," or breaks up, these molecules into "atoms"; but the parts thus obtained have no longer the qualities of the original substance. Hence the molecule may be considered as the smallest particle of a substance in which its qualities inhere; and every molecule, though physically indivisible, can be broken up chemically into atoms, which are themselves the molecules of other and elementary bodies.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Saturday's business in general merchandise markets continues to show a decided increase and in many departments there is considerable activity, as rates of transportation were never so low, and the ability of the people to purchase and pay for goods never was greater, and there never was a prospect for a very large distribution of merchandise this fall than at present.

Provisions—Dull at nominal prices.

Rio coffee—Quiet and unchanged, but prices are weak.

Refined sugars—Active at full prices.

Teas—Still in slow demand; holders are less pressing.

Dry Goods—In steady demand with prices firm.

EASTERN FREIGHT MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The weather has been against any decided improvement in the freight market, which at best is not at all active. Still there seems to be a strong undertone and early revival of trade is confidently expected. Ships on berth, although loading slowly, are well advanced, and both the Pacific and Armenia will get away next week. Rates remain very steady at previous quotations, and there is no prospect of any decline; but, on the other hand, there is a better prospect of advance owing to the fact of a scarcity of tonnage, and higher rates are paid therefor. Tonnage is in light supply for future wants and likely to be for some time; as many of the regular California lines are vying from Europe are accepting business back direct in order to be on hand for wheat cargoes. No new business is noted for either of the lines.

Freights at Boston show some improvement. Railroad freights at Boston are also fairly active. The Philadelphia market is still quiet.

Chicago Wheat Market.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Wheat active, unsettled, generally lower; $1 28¼ cash, September, $1 30¾ October, $1 33¼ November, $1 04 December.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros. of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

HUB PUNCH

TO TOP OFF A DINNER,

May be Drunk Clear as a Cordial.

After a dinner thoroughly appointed, the good old way was to wash down the last triumphs of the feast with copious libations of rich, rare and curious old Port and Golden Sherry; but "HUB PUNCH" has added a new sensation to the epicure. Its delicacy, aroma, flavor, and deliciousness, together with its effects, proclaim it the nectar fit for the gods banqueting on Olympus.

Mix HUB PUNCH with Ice Water, Cold Tea, Lemonade, or Soda. It is unanimously pronounced unrivaled.

TESTIMONIALS.

"As nip is like nectar."—Jonas Green.

"Delicious beyond description."—Boston Transcript.

"Added to the good things of the table, it enlarges the vision of life and encourages good fellowship and good nature."—Spirit of the Times.

King of the Blood

Is not a "cure all," it is a blood-purifier and tonic. Impurity of blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great generic disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Disorders, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c., &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, impurity of the Blood. Chemists and physicians agree in calling it "the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose." Sold by Druggists, $1 per bottle. See testimonials, directions, &c. in pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle.

KINNEY'S PATENT

TUBULAR FOUNT FENCE

FOR CEMETERY LOTS.

The cut represents a single grave enclosed. The fence is constructed of tubular pipes; when filled with water, serves to supply the vases, in which flowers, plants and vines may be placed. These are in place with a constant moisture, caused by the evaporation of water from the pipes through the vases. By one filling the fountain plants grow luxuriantly for weeks without further attention. Nothing can be more appropriate for the lasting means to adorn and beautify the graves of departed loved ones. The fence is made in any shape and supplied with granite or marble blocks for the carving of the inscription for the dead. The canopy, on which suspends the flower basket, is supplied for the trailing of the vines, as is shown in the cut. Wherever this fence has been sold it has met with universal praise. Parties wishing to see it apply to S. M. WALKER, Salem, Or. PRICES—For child, $[illegible]; grown person $50. Enclosing lots according to cut, $[illegible].

On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.
